The Loans and Bursaries Program

Every year, the Ministère de l'Éducation et de l'Enseignement supérieur du Québec's Loans and Bursaries Program, run by Aide financière aux études, enables some 170 000 Québec students who have insufficient financial resources, to pursue full-time secondary school level vocational training or college or university studies. It is the main source of student funding provided by the Government of Québec.

You are expected to contribute to the cost of your education in proportion to your means, and the same holds for your parents, spouse or sponsor, if applicable. This is the fundamental principle on which the Loans and Bursaries Program is based. Financial assistance is awarded on a case-by-case basis, and takes account of all required contributions and expenses that are normally incurred in the pursuit of your studies.

Initial Aide financière aux études financial assistance under the Loans and Bursaries Program comes as a loan that you repay once you have finished your studies. If the loan is insufficient to cover your needs, you may be eligible for a non-refundable bursary.

As long as you remain a full-time student, the government pays the interest on your loan. You will only be required to start repaying the principal and interest on your student loan after you graduate or abandon your studies.

Glossary

Assessment: Procedure by which the amount of financial assistance to be awarded to a student is determined on the basis of allowable expenses and expected contributions.

Award year: The annual period starting September 1st and ending August 31st.

Bursary: Financial assistance awarded to a student by the government when the amount that may be granted in the form of a loan for an award year does not cover the difference between the student's allowable expenses and his or her contributions. This type of assistance does not have to be repaid. The bursary amount corresponds to the portion of financial assistance that the government repays the financial institution at the end of the award year to convert part of the loan into a bursary.

Calendar year: The annual period starting January 1st and ending December 31st.

Civil union: Commitment made by two persons who consent to live together. The civil union is contracted openly before a competent celebrant and is witnessed through a civil union act.

Confirmation of financial resources: Form on which students confirm or update the income they reported on their application for financial assistance. This form must be completed twice during the award year (i.e. in September and January). If students fail to complete and return this form on the dates indicated, payment of their financial assistance is suspended.

Contribution: Amount provided by a student, or the student's parents, spouse or sponsor, toward the cost of the student's education.

Co-op programs: Study programs that includes full-time paid workplace practicum in addition to coursework. Also known as "work-study" programs.

Deemed enrolled: Status that enables certain students to be covered by the Loans and Bursaries program while they are between two study periods for a time that does not exceed four months¹.

Deemed full-time: Status that enables certain part-time students to benefit from the Loans and Bursaries Program².

Dependent child: A single child who does not have children and is of minor age or, if of major age, is a full-time student living with his or her parents, or if not living with the parents, where a parental contribution is required.

Full exemption period: Grace period during which students are not required to repay their student loan, nor the accruing interest.

Guarantee certificate: A document that is usually issued at the beginning of a student's first period of studies and which is required to take out a student loan at a financial institution. The certificate is only issued once for the entire period of studies unless the recipient interrupts them for more than six months.

Head of a single parent family: Person living with at least one child, having custody at least 25% of the time and is single, a widow or widower, legally or de facto divorced and single or separated or whose spouse cannot be located.

Loan: Financial assistance paid into your account by your financial institution based on a government-guaranteed loan authorization. No interest is due on such loans for the entire duration of the exemption period.

Loan authorization: Electronic transaction performed by Aide financière aux études on a monthly or periodic basis to enable your financial institution to deposit funds to your account.

Loan-to-bursary conversion: Electronic transfer of funds from the government to your financial institution for the purpose of converting to a bursary, part of the financial assistance that was originally provided to you as a loan and paid as such into your bank account. This transfer is performed at the end of each school year after the student's income has been verified with Revenu Québec.

Major functional disabilities: For the purposes of the Loans and Bursaries Program, the term "students with major functional disabilities" refers to individuals whose permanent severe visual, hearing, motor or organ impairment significantly and persistently limits their ability to study.³

Parent: Your father or your mother.

Partial exemption period: Grace period after students complete their studies during which they become responsible for the interest on their student loans. Students are not required to start making payments on the loan principal during this period.

Sponsor: Person, other than a parent or spouse, who endorsed a student's application for permanent residence in Canada or naturalization in accordance with the provisions of the Immigration and Refugee Protection Act.

Spouse: Person to whom a student is married or with whom the student is living in a civil union or living as though married, along with a child, who may be either the student's or the spouse's (the latter part of this definition also applies to same-sex partners).

Student loan repayment deferment: This is a debt repayment exemption period that is granted following a temporary interruption of full-time studies.

Study period: Usually lasting four months, this period may vary in accordance with the educational institution's academic calendar. As an example, for a college program that ends in May, the winter study period lasts five months.

1. See section 3.4 for details on the notion of "deemed enrolled."
2. See section 1.4 for details on the notion of "deemed full-time."
3. See Section 8, "Major Functional Disabilities" for further details.

Other criteria that apply to studying outside Québec

All Canadian college and university programs subsidized by the government of their province are recognized for the purposes of loans and bursaries.

If you are studying outside Québec, including in another province or in France and are enrolled in one of the following programs that are subject to quotas set by the Government of Québec or the Ministère, you are not eligible for the Loans and Bursaries Program:

13. Exceptionally, you can qualify for the Loans and Bursaries Program if you live in Québec and study medicine at the University of Ottawa.

1.4 Full-Time or Deemed Full-Time Status

To qualify for the Loans and Bursaries Program, you must be a full-time student or be deemed a full-time student. One of the following situations must thus apply to you.

Deemed full-time status:

- The educational institution you attend in Québec considers you to be a full-time student. If you have any questions about this matter, ask at your school's student aid office
- The educational institution you attend outside Québec considers you to be a full-time student. To learn which documents you need to provide if you are in this situation, contact us or click on Outside Québec in the During Your Studies menu on our Web site.

You may be deemed to have full-time status if you are a part-time student enrolled in at least 20 course hours per month and fall into one of the following categories:

- You are at least 20 weeks pregnant
- You are a single parent and live with your child, who is, was or will be less than 12 years of age on September 30, 2016.
- You live with a child (your own or your spouse's) who is, was or will be less than 6 years of age on September 30, 2016.
- You live with a child (your own or your spouse's) who is, was or will be less than 21 years of age on September 30, 2016, is a student and has a major functional disability or mental illness
- You have a recognized major functional disability¹⁴
- You are unable to continue your studies for at least one month due to a serious episodic disorder stemming from major permanent mental or physical health problems confirmed by a medical certificate
- You participate in the Réussir Program run by the ministère du Travail, de l'Emploi et de la Solidarité sociale

Note

- If you are in a college program leading to a DCS or ACS and are missing less than three courses to complete the requirements of the program, you can qualify for financial assistance without being deemed to have full-time status.
- A practicum is considered equivalent to a full-time study period if it is a compulsory part of the study program and is effectively deemed a full-time practicum by the educational institution.
- Students doing a full-time practicum as part of a cooperative program (also called a work-study program) do not qualify for financial assistance under the Loans and Bursaries Program. During this period, however, students will not be required to start repaying their loans or the interest accrued on their loans.

1.5 Eligibility Periods

Financial assistance is granted either as a loan and bursary or as a loan only for a specified number of months that varies according to the level of education (secondary, college or university), the program and, for university students, the type of degree (bachelor's, master's or doctoral).

Eligibility for a bursary ends once the prescribed number of months has been reached, and any further financial assistance is exclusively granted in the form of a loan.

Note

- The first month of studies is taken to be the month when a student begins a recognized program before the 16th day of the month
- The last month of studies recognized during the year includes at least one day of classes

Basic Period of Eligibility
Level of Education	Loan	Bursary
Secondary school (vocational training)	35 months	First 26 months
College (pre-university education)	33 months	First 24 months
College (technical training)	42 months	First 33 months
University (undergraduate)	39 months	First 30 months
University (master's degree)	31 months	First 22 months
University (doctoral degree)	47 months	First 38 months
Note – The maximum number of months for which financial assistance can be awarded to students enrolled in university or equivalent programs is 88 (all levels combined).

14. Refer to Section 8 for full details on recognized major functional disabilities.

Note

- Students who qualify for financial assistance at the beginning of an award year, remain eligible for the entire year. However, should their study program change during the year, their eligibility period will be revised in accordance with the level of education of the new program.
- If you are a full-time university Québec student with self-directed studies status, you can qualify for the Loans and Bursaries Program for no more than eight months at each level of education.
- Students with dependent children qualify for an bursary eligibility extension of nine months. However, the bursary amount awarded may be limited.
- The eligibility period for loan financial assistance must correspond to at least the expected duration of studies plus 15 months, and for bursaries, the duration plus 6 months. This means that if a study program is longer, the eligibility period will be extended per the preceding rules.

How the Period of Eligibility is Calculated

Each month for which allowable expenses are recognized is included in the calculation of the eligibility period, except for the months during which students are deemed enrolled, which are not counted when determining this number.

To determine the eligibility of a person who is deemed a full-time student, half the number of months of study are considered for the study period in which this status applies.

The number of months of study for which students have received financial assistance under the Loans Program for Part-Time Studies does not decrease the number of months counted toward eligibility for the Loans and Bursaries Program, and vice-versa.

1.6 Student Loan Debt Limits

If, at the beginning of an award year, you have already reached the debt limit for your level of education, type of degree or program, you no longer qualify for financial assistance.

If you qualify for financial assistance at the beginning of an award year, this status applies for the entire award year. However, if you change programs during the year, or if a change in your circumstances for a previous year – leading to an increase in the loan amount awarded to you for the current year – is recognized, your eligibility for financial assistance will be reassessed in the light of your level of indebtedness at the beginning of the year.

Student Loan Debt Limits by Level of Education

Vocational training	$22 000
College
– Pre-university education	$16 000

• Subsidized programs	$23 000
• Subsidized programs offered at a private educational institution	$27 000

Student Categories

The Québec Loans and Bursaries Program defines three categories of students:

- Those “with a spousal contribution”
- Those “without a parental contribution;”
- Those “with a parental contribution”

2.1 Students With a Spousal Contribution

Your spouse’s contribution will be taken into account if you are in one of the following categories:

- Married
- In a civil union

- You are at least 20 weeks pregnant.
- You have been studying at the university level in Québec for at least three years and have earned 90 credits in a single program.¹⁵ If this was a 90-credit program, you will have earned your diploma. However, if this program was at a school located outside Québec, the number of required full-time years of study is four, unless you hold a DCS, in which case it remains three.

- You have a bachelor’s degree from a Québec university or an equivalent degree from an institution outside Québec.¹⁶
- You have a Diploma of Advanced Studies I in Music or an attestation issued upon completion of three years of training at the Conservatoire de musique et d’art dramatique du Québec.

 - You have held a paid job or have received employment insurance or income replacement benefits (CNESST, SAAQ, Retraite Québec, etc.) while living with your parents, your sponsor or elsewhere.

Your parents will be expected to contribute toward the cost of your education if neither of the above categories applies to you.

A parental contribution may not be required if you are in an exceptional family situation. Please refer to Section 7 for more information.

Note

- If you are a permanent resident of Canada or a naturalized Canadian, your sponsor will likely be expected to contribute toward the cost of your education if your parents did not live in Canada at the beginning of the award year and the sponsorship period has not expired.

15. The cumulative number of credits is reduced from 90 to 45 for students with major functional disabilities.

16. In the case of university degrees obtained outside Québec, only honours degrees and bachelor’s degrees with a specialization are considered equivalent to Québec bachelor’s degrees.

17. Please note that you cannot count interruptions of 6 months or less for continuing education or 4 months or less for regular education between two full-time study sessions in the 24-month total.

3 Allowable Expenses

The Loans and Bursaries Program recognizes that some expenses are required for students to pursue their studies, and takes account of them in assessing the assistance that could be awarded to you.

Allowable expenses are divided into two categories: monthly expenses (recurring on a monthly basis) and one-time expenses (occurring only in certain months, depending on students' needs).

The expenses may be taken into account for the month or months when you:

- Are a full-time student
- Are deemed a full-time student
- Are a student deemed enrolled¹⁸
- Have dropped one or more courses
- Have abandoned your studies, as long as you pursue full-time studies in the following period

No expenses will be considered for the month or months when:

- You are receiving social assistance or social solidarity benefits, with the exception of the first month, during which certain expenses may be allowed.
- You are taking part in a program of study offered and paid for by Human Resources and Skills Development Canada.
- You are taking part in an Emploi-Québec manpower training measure (employment assistance allowance) in a program offered at a public secondary school or college, if the program is subsidized.
- You are taking part in an Emploi-Québec manpower training measure at a private secondary school or college or at a university or public college, if the program is not subsidized. However, if a government ministry or agency does not pay the tuition fees, they will be deemed allowable expenses.
- You are incarcerated. However, allowable expenses may be considered if you are serving your sentence in a halfway house or on weekends only, are not incarcerated during an entire study period or are not incarcerated even though you have been sentenced to serve time.
- You are doing a full-time practicum as part of a work-study college program or cooperative university program.

3.1 Tuition Fees and Related Expenses

This refers to the amount you pay to your educational institution (admission, registration and tuition fees, fees related to instructional services and other fees) and the normal costs of textbooks and supplies.

The following table lists the amounts normally allowed for textbooks and school supplies.

Amount Allowed for Textbooks, School Supplies or Specialized Equipment per Study Period
Secondary school vocational training program	$188
Pre-university college program	$188
College technical training program	$212
University program	$406
- Architecture, Visual Arts, Chiropractic, Physical Education, Occupational Therapy, Medicine, Veterinary Medicine, Music, Speech Therapy, Audiology, Optometry, Pharmacy, Physiotherapy and Engineering	$464
- Master's or doctoral programs, when the term is devoted to writing a dissertation or thesis	$212

Note

- There is a $6 000 cap on recognized tuition fees charged by educational institutions per period of studies.
- Expenses related to specialized equipment may be allowed for some study programs.
- For secondary school vocational training, the total amount that could be allowed for school supplies is taken into account in the first month of the award year.

3.2 Allowance for Training Support Materials

This is an optional, $150 allowance per recognized study period, granted as a loan only, and intended to enable the purchase of various additional school supplies.

To receive this allowance, you must qualify for the Loans and Bursaries Program, then apply.

Note

- School supply expenses and the allowance for training support materials are not awarded during full-time practicum periods.

3.3 Living Expenses

Living expenses include applicable housing, food, personal expenses and the cost of public transit.

Living Expenses for Students Who Live with Their Parents

- You are in the category of students with a parental or sponsor's contribution:
 - If you effectively live with themor
 - If you do not live with them but your parent or sponsor lives in the same residential zone, where the educational institution is served by public transit
- You are in the category of students without a parental or spouse's contribution, effectively live with them and are single, with no children.

Living Expenses for Students Who Do Not Live with Their Parents

If you fall into the other student categories, including students who are at least 20 weeks pregnant, you are deemed not to be living with your parents.

Amounts allowed for living expenses are $392 per month of studies if you live with your parents, and $837 per month of studies if you do not.

Note

- Your living expenses will be reduced by $100 per month if you withdraw from any of your courses. This amount rises to $200 per month if you withdraw from all of your courses, but return to your study program during the following period. The reduction takes effect the month following the date of withdrawal.

Students who do not return to their study programs during the following period will not be entitled to the allowance for living expenses as of the month that follows the date of withdrawal.

3.4 Living Expenses for Students Deemed Enrolled

If you are in one of the following situations, you could receive living expenses between two periods of study if the number of months involved does not exceed four and you are not a full-time student, or so deemed:

- You are in a situation of complete destitution within the meaning of Section 49 of the Individual and Family Assistance Act (L.R.Q., c. A-13.1.1).
- You have a major functional disability.
- You live with your child.
- You are at least 20 weeks pregnant.
- You are a beneficiary of the Réussir program of the ministère du Travail, de l'Emploi et de la Solidarité sociale because you have a major employment constraint.
- You have a serious episodic disorder.

If you live with your parents, allowable living expenses are $175 + 10% of your employment income, up to a maximum of $392 per month.

If you do not live with your parents, allowable living expenses are $620 + 10% of your employment income, up to a maximum of $837 per month.

You may also be entitled to living expenses for dependent children and expenses incurred as head of a single-parent family during the time when you are deemed enrolled.

3.5 Children's Living Expenses and Childcare Expenses

Children's living expenses

You may be awarded living expenses for a dependent child, provided the child is single, is not a parent and meets one of the following conditions:

- Aged 18 years or over, is a full-time student and lives with you
- Aged 18 years or over, is a full-time student, does not live with you, but you are expected to contribute to the cost of his or her education

These expenses are also allowed if you are at least 20 weeks pregnant and last until the month when you give birth.

Living expenses are $252 per month for each child.

Note

- Living expenses for shared custody children aged 18 years or over are pro-rated to the amount of time the child spends with you, on condition that this proportion is at least 25%.

Childcare Expenses

Students are allowed $162 per month for each child they report who is under 12 years of age on September 30th of the current award year, to cover childcare expenses.

An amount may also be allowed to cover childcare expenses for children 12 years of age or over who have major functional disabilities or mental disorders.

Note

- If you and the other parent of the child are spouses, both students and both received assistance under the Loans and Bursaries Program, living and childcare expenses will be awarded to the mother unless otherwise requested by both parents. If such a request is made, the change will apply either for the entire award year or for a specific period. If you and your spouse are not both the parents of the child, the living and childcare expenses will be awarded to whichever one is the parent.
- If you have custody of the child for more than 50% of the time, the full amount of childcare expenses will be recognized. However, when custody is shared equally, monthly expenses will be divided in two.

3.6 Expenses for Single-Parent Families

If you are the head of a single-parent family and your child is under age 18, monthly living expenses of $68 are allowed per child.

This amount rises to $189 per month if you have no minor dependent children but have custody of a child age 18 or over. If you are at least 20 weeks pregnant and have no other children living with you, these living expenses are also recognized from the month following the 20th week to the month after you give birth.

If you are a single student, a widow or widower, divorced, separated (legally or de facto) or if your spouse cannot be located and you have custody at least 25% of the time, you are considered to be a single parent.

3.7 Transportation Expenses

Non-existent or inadequate public transit

Public transit expenses are included in monthly living expenses recognized for students who are living with their parents. However, additional expenses in the amount of $95 may be allowed if the location of your parent's home is not adequately served by public transit, or no public transit is available.

Special transportation costs

If there is no overland transportation between your home and your educational institution or the organization hosting your practicum, and if both are located in Québec, expenses equivalent to the cost of two round-trip economy-class airline tickets between your home and the closest road link are included in your transportation costs unless you are studying or doing a practicum full-time for only one study period, in which case you are entitled to just one round trip.

3.8 Practicum Expenses

A practicum is a period of practical training in the workplace.

A practicum that is equivalent to a full-time period of studies

A practicum is deemed a full-time period of studies if is a compulsory part of the program and your educational institution considers you to be a full-time student.

During the practicum, you must live elsewhere than at your usual place of residence (where your spouse continues to live). Additional monthly practicum expenses allowed in this case, but cannot exceed the maximum amount authorized for the given award year.

A practicum within a period of studies

Monthly practicum expenses may be added to your living expenses.

Practicum expenses are allowed when the practicum is a compulsory part of your program and you live elsewhere than your usual place of residence at least once in any given month, whether or not you live with your parents or your sponsor. Your living expenses, however, will not be modified.

The allowance for practicum expenses in this case is $277 per month up to a maximum of $1 287 per award year.

3.9 Other Expenses

Expenses related to “outlying” cities, regions and RCMs

If you are in the category of students with a parental contribution but do not live with them, additional timely expenses of $73 per month of studies are allowed, up to a maximum of $584 per award year, and are paid at the beginning of each period of studies, provided that your parent’s place of residence or the educational institution you attend is located in a city, region or RCM that is considered an outlying area. This measure applies to the following regions, RCMs and city:

- Bas-Saint-Laurent
- Gaspésie–Îles-de-la-Madeleine
- Saguenay–Lac-Saint-Jean
- Côte-Nord
- Nord-du-Québec
- Abitibi-Témiscamingue
- Pontiac RCM
- Vallée-de-la-Gatineau RCM
- Antoine-Labelle RCM
- City of La Tuque

Expenses Allowed for Eyeglasses or Contact Lenses

Additional expenses are allowed for purchasing eyeglasses or contact lenses for yourself or your children.

Eyeglasses (including frames and lenses) and contact lenses must be prescribed by an optometrist, an ophthalmologist or other doctor.

The expenses are recognized only after purchase, and apply to you and to children for whom you or your spouse have custody.

The maximum amount reimbursed is $187 per person in each two consecutive award year period.

These are one-time expenses, usually recognized during the month of purchase.

Medication and Chiropractic Expenses

Allowable expenses may include the cost of medication and chiropractic treatments prescribed by a doctor, provided that these expenses are not covered by the Québec Health Insurance Plan or by a private insurance plan. If such is the case, only the portion of the expenses not already covered will be considered.

The portion exceeding $16 per month will be considered at the time of purchase, provided the expenses were for yourself, your children or your spouse’s children.

Only medications on the list published by the Institut national d’excellence en santé et en services sociaux can be covered.

These expenses are allowed on a one-time basis, usually for the month when the cost of medication or medical care is incurred.

3.10 Additional Expenses That Relate to the Student's Contribution

In some circumstances, calculation of your contribution could lead to additional expenses being allowed.

- If you were a beneficiary of the Loans and Bursaries Program in the preceding award year and the calculation of your contribution gives a negative result, you may qualify for additional allowable expenses equal to that amount.
- If you were a full-time student between January and December and have seen your income fall by at least 10% during the current calendar year, you may qualify for a supplement of one-third of the difference between your contribution assessment for the year preceding the drop in income and your assessed contribution for the year during which your income dropped, if applicable. However, this amount will only be added if you received a bursary during the preceding award year.

- Income replacement benefits received under the Act respecting industrial accidents and occupational diseases or similar federal or provincial legislation, the Automobile Insurance Act, the Crime Victims Compensation Act or the Act to promote good citizenship
- Retirement or disability pension benefits received under the Act respecting the Québec Pension Plan or the Canada Pension Plan
- Benefits received under the Act respecting employment insurance in Canada
- Benefits received under the Québec Parental Insurance Plan
- An amount received from Emploi-Québec as a result of participating in a manpower training measure or from the ministère de l'Immigration, de la Diversité et de l'Inclusion under the financial aid program for the linguistic integration of immigrants (PAFIL)
- Benefits received under a private or public pension plan

4 Financial Resources and Contributions

Contributions are calculated for the entire award year. They may be reduced to take certain exceptional situations into account.

4.1 Student's Financial Resources and Contribution

Your contribution is assessed on the basis of your employment and other income for the calendar year ending during the award year

Your Financial Resources

For the purposes of the Loans and Bursaries Program, employment income includes the following:

- Gross income from full-time and part-time employment, including severance pay, tips and bonuses, as well as practicum income
- Net business or self-employment income within the meaning of the Taxation Act for the calendar year ending in the current award year

Note

- Income stemming from work in a government-mandated election (school board, municipal, provincial or federal) is not considered.

Other income includes:

- Death benefits in the form of pensions paid subject to the application of a law
- Pensions for a disabled person's child and surviving spouse's pensions under the Act respecting the Québec Pension Plan or the Canada Pension Plan
- Income from an estate, trust or gift¹⁹

- Bursaries received from associations, private firms and/or government bodies, and scholarships awarded by educational institution foundations
- Alimony and child support payments
- Amounts equal to any and all exemption from compulsory tuition fees, including in another province or country.

19. "Income from an estate" includes interest, dividends or other benefits derived from a sum of money received as an inheritance.

Note

- Under the Act to facilitate the payment of support, you must report the true amount received in support payments from your ex-spouse or from your child's father or mother to Aide financière aux études. The reported support payments must include all amounts that can be used at your discretion, as well as money paid to third parties and considered support in a court judgment. If the court judgment stipulates that the support granted does not have to be declared for tax purposes, the amounts actually received must be declared.
- Court-mandated support payments that are paid to you by either or both of your parents are taken into account and replace the expected individual parental contribution.
- An exemption of $1 200 with respect to reported support payments for each dependent child will be applied when assessing eligibility for financial assistance.
- An exemption of $1 200 will also be applied to students who receive support payments but have no dependent children.

Other income that should not be reported:

- Amounts paid by Retraite Québec as part of its child assistance measure (provincial family allowances)
- Canada Child Tax Benefit
- Universal Child Care Benefit
- Social assistance or social solidarity benefits
- Educational assistance payments received under a registered education savings plan (RESP)
- Amounts paid by the Société de l'assurance automobile du Québec (SAAQ) or the Commission des normes, de l'équité, de la santé et de la sécurité du travail (CNESST) as compensation, for example, for the loss of a limb or to reimburse certain expenses (physiotherapy, orthopedic devices, etc.)

- Social assistance or social solidarity benefits
- Explore program bursaries and bursaries awarded by Aide financière aux études (Loans and Bursaries Program, Programme de bourses pour les permanentes et les permanents élus des associations étudiantes nationales and Allowance for Special Needs Program).

Calculation of Your Contribution

Your contribution is calculated as follows:

- The exemptions to which you are entitled are deducted from your employment income.
- The result is multiplied by 50% (40% if you did not receive financial assistance under the Loans and Bursaries Program the previous year).
- To this amount is added 100% of your other income,²⁰ 100% of support payments (less any applicable exemptions) and 100% of any bursary totals that were considered in excess of $5 000.
- The contribution reductions that correspond to your situation are then applied.

Exemptions

In order to calculate your exemptions, we first determine the number of months between January 1st of the previous award year and the last month of the current award year for which expenses are allowed. This number of months is then used to calculate your protected income, as follows:

$1 134 X the number of months during which no expenses are allowed.

This result or a portion thereof serves to determine your exemptions:

Basic Exemption

We determine your basic exemption on the basis of the lesser of your employment income and the amount corresponding to 30% of your protected income.

Additional Exemption

This amount is determined by your circumstances during the first month of studies, as follows.

An amount equal to the sum of 35% of your protected income and 35% of your employment income is added to your basic exemption if one of the following situations applies to you:

- You do not live with your parents and are in the category of students who do not receive a parental contribution.
- You have a dependent child, are at least 20 weeks pregnant, are separated or divorced or are a widow or widower and live with your parents.
- You are in the category of students who receive a spousal contribution.

The additional exemption may not exceed 70% of your protected income. If none of these situations apply to you, the equivalent of 5% of your employment income will be added to your basic exemption, up to an amount equal to 5% of your protected income.

Exemptions
Basic exemption The lesser of the two following amounts: – 100% of your employment income or 30% of your protected income Additional exemption – 5% of your employment income, up to an amount equal to 5% of your protected income – 35% of your protected income + 35% of your employment income, up to an amount equal to 70% of your protected income

Contribution reductions

Contribution reductions are granted in the following cases:

- You are pursuing studies without being a full-time student within the four-month period that precedes a month of full-time studies.²¹
- You are in the first situation (and we have calculated an additional exemption of 5% in assessing your contribution) but do not live with your parents during the months for which no expenses are allowed. An additional reduction will be added to the first one.
- You are employed (and we have calculated an additional exemption of 5% in assessing your contribution) but do not live with your parents during the months for which no expenses are allowed.

Contribution Reductions
You are pursuing studies that are not full-time studies: University: $255 X number of credits College (private educational institutions): $22 X number of course hours College (public educational institutions) and secondary school (vocational training): $15 X number of course hours less (2.5% of your employment income up to an amount equal to your protected income, X [number of course hours ÷ 15] or the number of credits) You are eligible for an additional 5% exemption in the assessment of your contribution, do not live with your parents and are pursuing studies that are not full-time studies: University: $120 X number of credits College and secondary school (vocational training): $8 X number of course hours You are eligible for an additional 5% exemption in the assessment of your contribution, do not live with your parents and are employed: $380 X the lesser of the following two amounts: number of months taken into account when calculating your protected income – (number of credits ÷ 3) or (number of course hours ÷ 45) or your employment income ÷ $1 134

21. Not granted if you are a beneficiary of the Loans Program for Part-Time Studies.

4.2 Parental Financial Resources and Contribution

Under the Civil Code of Québec, parents are required to contribute toward the cost of their child's education. It is their duty to feed, maintain and educate their child, even if the child is over 18 years old.

The amount of the parental contribution is usually based on the incomes of both parents. However, if the parents no longer live together, only the income of the parent with whom you reside or last resided will be taken into account. If you do not currently reside with one of your parents or have not resided with either of them since their separation, the income of the parent you designate will be taken into account.

If you have a sponsor, only that person's financial resources will be considered, and the contribution will be established in the same way as the parental contribution.

Parents' Financial Resources

The parents' financial resources are defined as their combined total income for the calendar year preceding the current award year.

Total income includes:

- Total reported income in the calendar year preceding the current award year, as defined by the Taxation Act
- Québec government child assistance payments (calculated by Aide financière aux études);
- Canada Child Tax Benefit (calculated by Aide financière aux études).
- Universal Child Care Benefit (calculated by Aide financière aux études)

Note

- To find out which situations do not require a parental contribution, see Sections 2.1 and 2.2.
- If the income of either or both of your parents dropped by 10% or more during the calendar year that ended during the current award year as compared to the previous calendar year, the expected contribution is assessed on the basis of current year income. In this case, your parent or parents must provide a Declaration of income drop of at least 10% form for the current calendar year. If a contribution is expected from both of your parents, their combined income drop must be at least 10%.
- If there is a difference between the total amount actually received in Québec government child assistance payments and Canada Child Tax benefits and the amount that was considered in the parental contribution assessed by Aide financière aux études, your parent may request a correction.

Parental Contribution

In order to establish the parental contribution when assessing the eligible loan amount, the following exemptions are subtracted from the parents' total income:

Parental Contribution
Exemption	Amount
Dependent children
– Each child (excluding the student)	$3 020
– Student applying for financial assistance has a major functional disability (additional exemption)	$2 563

A progressive contribution rate is then applied to the resulting disposable income that takes account of individual parental situations, as shown in the following tables.

Contribution of Parents Living Together
$0 to $45 000	$0
$45 001 to $72 000	$0 on the first $45 000 and 19% on the remainder
$72 001 to $82 000	$5 130 on the first $72 000 and 29% on the remainder
$82 001 to $92 000	$8 030 on the first $82 000 and 39% on the remainder
$92 001 and +	$11 930 on the first $92 000 and 49% on the remainder

Contribution of a Single Parent
$0 to $40 000	0 $
$40 001 to $67 000	$0 on the first $40 000 and 19% on the remainder
$67 001 to $77 000	$5 130 on the first $67 000 and 29% on the remainder
$77 001 to $87 000	$8 030 on the first $77 000 and 39% on the remainder
$87 001 and +	$11 930 on the first $87 000 and 49% on the remainder

The resulting amount is divided by the number of children in the category of students "with a parental contribution."

Sponsors' Contribution

Sponsors' contributions are established in the same way as for single parents, except that only their personal financial resources are taken into account when assessing their contribution, whether or not they have a spouse.

4.3 Spousal Financial Resources and Contribution

The contribution expected from a spouse who is not receiving financial assistance under the Loans and Bursaries Program is based on his or her financial resources. No contribution will be expected from a spouse who is currently receiving financial assistance or who qualified for financial assistance in the preceding award year.

Spousal Financial Resources

Spousal income for the calendar year preceding the award year includes total income within the meaning of the Taxation Act.

Note

- If the income of your spouse dropped by 10% or more during the calendar year that ended during the current award year as compared to the previous calendar year, the expected contribution is assessed on the basis of current year income. In this case, your spouse must provide a Declaration of income drop of at least 10% form for the current calendar year.

Spousal Contribution

The spousal contribution is calculated by subtracting an exemption of $2 563 from his or her recognized income if you have a major functional disability. A progressive contribution rate is then applied to the resulting disposable income, as shown in the following table.

Spouse's Contribution
$0 to $38 000	$0
$38 001 to $65 000	$0 on the first $38 000 and 19% on the remainder
$65 001 to $75 000	$5 130 on the first $65 000 and 29% on the remainder
$75 001 to $85 000	$8 030 on the first $75 000 and 39% on the remainder
$85 001 to +	$11 930 on the first $85 000 and 49% on the remainder

The result is then divided by the sum of one plus the number of dependent children for whom a parental contribution is required and who are enrolled in full-time secondary level vocational training or in full-time postsecondary studies or, in the case of a child suffering from a major functional disability, who is deemed to be a full-time student.

5 Assessment of Financial Assistance and Terms and Conditions of Payment

The amount of financial assistance awarded to you by the government is assessed on the basis of your allowable expenses, recognized additional expenses and expected contributions.

As soon as the initial assessment is made, you will be informed of the total amount of financial assistance to which you are entitled, as well as the instalment breakdown (monthly or periodic payments). Financial assistance assessments are made for an entire award year, which usually runs from September 1st to August 31st.

5.1 Assessment of Financial Assistance

How the amount of your financial assistance is calculated

Financial assistance is calculated as follows:

Allowable expenses (including any supplements)

- Contributions (yours, your spouse's and your parents' or sponsor's, when applicable)

= Financial assistance needs

Your financial assistance award amount is determined on the basis of the information you reported in your application. This amount may change subsequently, following the verification of this information, for instance.

Established Loan Amounts
Level of Education	Amount
Secondary school (vocational training)
– Subsidized programs (public educational institutions)	$204/month of study
– Subsidized programs (private educational institutions)	$204/month of study + compulsory fees charged by the educational institution
– Unsubsidized programs	$204/month of study + compulsory fees charged by the educational institution
College ²²
– Subsidized programs (public educational institutions)	$224/month of study
– Subsidized programs (private educational institutions)	$224/month of study + compulsory fees charged by the educational institution
– Unsubsidized programs (private educational institutions)	$970/month of study
– Unsubsidized programs (private educational institutions that receive a subsidy from the ministère de la Culture, des Communications et de la Condition féminine: Ateliers de danse moderne de Montréal inc., École de danse de Québec, École nationale de l'humour, École nationale de théâtre du Canada and Musitechnic services éducatifs inc.)	$321/month of study + compulsory fees charged by the educational institution
University
– Undergraduate ²²	$311/month of study
– Master's and doctoral degrees ²²	$413/month of study
– Bachelor's degree holder ²²	$413/month of study
– Programs recognized for the purposes of loans only	$970/month of study
If applicable, amounts may be added to these loan amounts as allowances for the purchase of training support materials.

Other Calculation Methods
When the level of financial assistance needed is less than the amount of the approved loan for a given award year (see table entitled Established Loan Amounts), a new calculation method is used. This method does not take account of your employment income. The amount of financial assistance granted by this calculation method for the award year is limited to the amount of the approved loan. Additionally, if the assessed level of your financial needs is less than the first portion of the loan ($1 000 for vocational and college levels and $2 400 for university level studies), a new assessment will be made without considering the parental contribution. In this case, the financial assistance granted for the given award year is limited to the amount of the first portion of the loan.

Assessment of the Loan Portion of Financial Assistance

Please note that the loan to which you are entitled is determined on the basis of the number of months during which you are studying and for which allowable expenses are recognized.

22. If the student is pursuing studies outside Québec, the monthly loan is increased to cover the compulsory fees charged by the educational institution (maximum $6 000/study period).

Special Allowance for Tuition Fees

A special allowance in the form of a loan is meant to cover the annual increase in university tuition fees. It is intended for students enrolled at a Québec university who have reached their loan ceiling or first part thereof and do not qualify for a bursary. The amount of the special allowance will vary in accordance with the number of credits for which the applicant is enrolled.

The Special Allowance for Tuition Fees is awarded when an individual enrolled in a Québec university program is entitled to financial assistance in the light of an assessment, which is shown in the box entitled Other Assessment on page 21.

Assessment of the Bursary Portion of Financial Assistance

When your financial needs exceed the maximum loan amount, you will be awarded a bursary, which is calculated as follows:

Financial needs – maximum loan amount in the award year = bursary amount

Note

- University students in Québec who receive a bursary and for whom the bursary is less than the amount of the Special Allowance for Increased University Tuition Fees may receive the offsetting Offset Allowance.
- The offsetting allowance is an additional loan amount aimed at providing assistance and is in general equivalent to tuition fees plus school supplies.

Sample assessment

The following example illustrates how bursaries are calculated.

Garry is a single student with a parental contribution. He is beginning his second year of university and received student financial assistance in the previous winter term. His financial assistance needs for the eight months of study in the award year are calculated as follows.

Assessment of Financial Assistance
Allowable expenses	$9 225
Student's contribution	$500
Parental contribution (parental income of $30 000, one other dependent child):	$0
Financial needs:	$8 725
Loan amount: 8 X $311 = $2 488
Loan amount:	$2 488
Bursary amount:	$6 237

Financial Assistance Amount that may Be Granted

Financial assistance that may be granted cannot exceed the sum of the following amounts:

Financial Assistance Amount that may Be Granted
Educational institutions recognized for the purposes of loans and bursaries
$14 611 at the secondary and college levels $17 598 at the university level + $3 937 for 1 child $4 983 for 2 children $6 034 for 3 or more children + Financial assistance that corresponds to the loan amount (see table on page 21)
Educational institutions recognized for the purposes of loans only
$970 per month of studies

5.2 Payment of Financial Assistance

You need to obtain a Guarantee Certificate in order to receive the financial assistance to which you are entitled. This document is provided only once, at the start of your studies, and is valid for the entire duration of your studies unless you interrupt them for more than six months. If you return to your studies after that period of time, you will receive a new Guarantee Certificate, provided that you remain eligible for the Loans and Bursaries Program.

All financial assistance paid during the award year is in the form of a loan. Payments are deposited to your bank account monthly or periodically.

After verifying your income with Revenu Québec (usually in the spring), the government reimburses your financial institution for the portion of your financial assistance that corresponds to the bursary to which you are entitled. This reduces your loan balance by the bursary amount.

Note

- Payments may be suspended if you have not submitted confirmation of your financial resources or change of address by the prescribed deadlines.
- If you are only entitled to financial assistance as a loan, payment is made in accordance with the number of your study periods. Instalments start at the beginning of each term, in order to make things easier, and allowances for training support materials are added to the first payment in each study period.
- Guarantee Certificates are not sent to individuals suffering from major functional deficiencies that have been recognized prior to certificate issuance, as they receive financial assistance by direct deposit only. If this applies to you, please fill out and submit the Application for Direct Deposit form (see Section 8).

Participating Financial Institutions

The following financial institutions participate in the Loans and Bursaries Program:

- Desjardins
- Bank of Montreal
- Laurentian Bank
- National Bank of Canada
- Royal Bank of Canada

Assistance Instalment Payments

Financial assistance awarded to you is paid in instalments, in order to meet your financial needs in each of the months of the award year during which you are studying or are deemed enrolled.

Note

- Scheduling of your assistance payments is reassessed with each new calculation. New breakdowns take account of amounts already paid, as applicable.
- When a bursary is granted for an award year, payments are usually made during each month of studies. However, due to expenses that are recognized at the beginning of a period, payments could be made only in specific months during the award year.
- Anticipated financial assistance may be granted to you in the form of a loan if we are unable to perform an assessment of the financial assistance to which you are entitled and you are in danger of becoming destitute within the meaning of the Act Respecting Income Support, Employment Assistance and Social Solidarity. Beneficiaries of the Social Assistance Program or the Social Solidarity Program who return to their studies are deemed to be in this situation.

6 Deadlines and Changes to Your Circumstances During the Year

The following rules relate to deadlines for submitting documents and changes to your circumstances during the year and to the terms and conditions of payment of financial assistance.

6.1 Deadlines

Deadline for Submitting an Application for Financial Assistance or Providing a Required Document

You must submit your application for financial assistance within 60 days of the end of your last month of recognized studies. Documents will be accepted after the deadline only if the student can provide satisfactory proof that he or she was unable to submit them in time due to extraordinary circumstances beyond his or her control.

Apply online using the electronic form that is available under the Full-time Forms tab in your online file (www.afe.gouv.qc.ca) – there are so many advantages!

- Forms are tailored to your situation
- Secure transmission of your personal information
- Upload any required documents right into your online file

Documents requested by Aide financière aux études must be sent within 45 days. If you fail to provide Aide financière aux études with the requested document by this 45-day deadline, analysis of your file will be suspended.

Applying on our Web site instead of with paper forms lets you upload any required documents right into your personal online file.

In addition, if you are not applying for financial assistance for the first time, your Web form will be personalised. To facilitate the process, Aide financière aux études will have already filled in part of the form using information from your file.

6.2 Changes During the Award Year

Changes to Your Circumstances

Your circumstances or those of your parents or spouse may change over the course of the award year. Since these changes are likely to affect the amount of financial assistance to which you are entitled, you must report all of them to Aide financière aux études.

When changes occur during the year, the new assessment of financial assistance could be less than the previous one, or even less than the amount that has already been paid to you. If this is the case, all or part of the financial assistance overpayment may be recovered during the year or in subsequent years. The manner in which the assistance is recovered depends on whether it takes place before or after the loan-to-bursary conversion stage.

PART II

Exceptional Cases

This part of the brochure presents useful information that applies to exceptional cases.

Exceptional Family Situations

You, or the persons expected to contribute to the cost of your education, could face difficulties that may lead to special assessment of your case.

In order to have your exceptional family situation recognized, you will be required to fill out the Declaration of Exceptional Family Situation form and submit it to Aide financière aux études.

7.1 Students Placed in a Foster Home or a Youth Protection Centre

If you have been placed in a foster home or youth protection centre in accordance with the Youth Protection Act, the Act respecting health services and social services or the Youth Criminal Justice Act, a parental contribution is not required while this situation lasts.

Moreover, you will receive the allowance for expenses for students who do not reside with their parents, except during the times when you were under the care of a child and youth protection centre.

7.2 Students Placed in the Custody of a Guardian

If you were placed in the custody of a guardian but were not legally adopted by him or her, you are considered not to be living with your parents, and no contribution is expected from your guardian or from your parents.

7.3 Students Whose Family Situation Has Deteriorated

If your family situation has deteriorated to the point that you are forced to leave home, you will be considered not to be living with your parents. If, in addition to this, you must cease all communication with one of your parents, no contribution will be expected from that individual.

In each of these cases, confirmation by a social worker is required.

7.4 Students Whose Parents or Spouse Cannot be Located

If your parents or spouse cannot be located and his or her place of residence or work is unknown, the rule regarding expected contributions will not be applied.

7.5 Students Whose Parents (or Custodial Parent) Live in a Protected Residence

If your parents (or your custodial parent) live in a reception centre, residential centre, hospital or correctional institution, you will be considered not to be living with your parents while this situation lasts.

7.6 Students Who Live in a Halfway House

If you live in a halfway house, you will receive the allowance for a student who resides with his or her parents unless proof is submitted that you are required to pay rent and food.

Major Functional Disabilities

For the purposes of the Loans and Bursaries Program, the term “students with major functional disabilities” refers to individuals whose permanent severe visual, hearing, motor or organ impairment significantly and persistently limits their ability to study.

8.1 Exceptional Cases

Certain provisions of the Loans and Bursaries Program are intended specifically for students with major functional disabilities who must study part-time because of their disabilities. These students must be enrolled for a minimum of 20 course hours per month.

Note

- Financial assistance assessed under loan rules is awarded as a bursary in such cases.
- Students may receive a bursary for the maximum eligible number of periods of study at each level of education for which financial assistance exists. In the case of students who are required to study part-time, half the number of months of study are taken into account in determining their period of eligibility.

8.2 What You Need to Do

If you have a major functional disability, you need to submit the Medical Certificate – Major Functional Disabilities and Other Recognized Disabilities form duly completed by a doctor. This form needs to be submitted only once.

9.3 Exceptional Case

The Examination Committee for Exceptional Cases issues waivers for exceptional situations that compromise the pursuit of studies and are not anticipated in the normal course of student financial assistance.

You may apply to the Examination Committee for Exceptional Cases if you find yourself in one of the following situations that could compromise the pursuit of your studies:

- You no longer qualify for student financial assistance programs because you have reached the maximum number of months of eligibility or authorized debt limit.
- You believe that the amount of financial that was granted is insufficient to allow you to continue your studies.

In either case, you will need to demonstrate the exceptional nature of your situation or the extraordinary expenses that you must incur during the award year that are not anticipated in the student financial assistance plan.

Firstly, you need to read the Exceptional Case Application Guide, that can be found on www.afe.gouv.qc.ca Aide financière aux études Web site. You should also seek the opinion of your school's student aid office to ensure that you have all the help you need in preparing your request.

Once complete, your request should be mailed to the following address by the manager of your school's student aid office:

PART III

Repayment and Remission of Your Student Loan

Remission of Your Student Loan

10 The Loan Remission Program

The purpose of the Loan Remission Program is to forgive 15 per cent of the student loan debt of any person who completed his or her studies within the prescribed period and who received a bursary under the Loans and Bursaries Program in each year of study.

To be eligible for the program, you must meet one of the following conditions:

- Have completed a college-level technical training program leading to a Diploma of College Studies (DCS) within the prescribed period.
- Have completed a program leading to an undergraduate degree (bachelor's) within the prescribed period. Loan remission may also be granted for previous college studies, provided they meet the eligibility requirements.

Loan remission may be granted for graduate and doctoral levels, provided you received a loan remission for undergraduate studies.

Note

- The prescribed period is usually 27 months of study for a technical training program at the college level, 24 months for an undergraduate university program spread over a 3-year period and 32 months for an undergraduate program spread over a 4-year period. At the graduate level, the prescribed period is 16 months for a master's degree without a thesis and 20 months for a master's degree with a thesis. The prescribed period for a doctorate is 32 months. However, the duration of some programs may vary.

- Students who previously started another program and then withdrew are not excluded from the Loan Remission Program. Only those months of study during which you were enrolled full-time will be considered in determining whether you completed your program within the prescribed period.
- The loan remission will be forwarded to your lending institution so that it may deduct the amount from your student loan debt.
- The loan remission is taxable. A tax slip will be issued to you.
- Applications for loan remission must be submitted within three years of the end of the program for which remission is requested.

Repayment of Your Student Loan

During your studies

As long as you remain a full-time student, the government will ensure interest payments on the loan you took out for either full- or part-time studies.

If you temporarily interrupt your full- or part-time studies, you could qualify for postponement of repayment of your student loan.

11 Postponing Repayment of Your Student Loan

You must be a full-time student or deemed as such for at least one of the six months that preceded the event that justifies your application for deferral in order to qualify for the deferral of repayment of your student loan and the payment of interest by the government.

You could qualify for postponing repayment of your student loan following a temporary interruption of your studies if you are in one of the following situations:

- If you are a student in at least your 20th week of pregnancy, the repayment of your student loan could be deferred by 12 months.
- If you are adopting a child, the repayment of your student loan could be deferred by 8 months.
- If your spouse gives birth during this period, the repayment of your student loan could be deferred by 8 months.
- If you interrupt your studies for more than one month due to disability, the repayment of your student loan could be deferred by 8 months.

- If you are elected as an executive officer of a national student association, this measure could apply to you.
- If you are a member of the Reserve Force and participate in a mission during your posting, the repayment of your student loan debt could be deferred by up to 24 months.

In all cases, the exemption is extended to September 1st if the exemption period expires between the months of May and August.

Assignment of Interest and Repayment of Student Loan

 As of the month following completion of your full-time studies, you become responsible for the interest charges on your student loan debt. However, you are not required to start repaying the principal for six months (the 6-month option). During that period, the interest can be paid or capitalized, i.e. converted into principal and added to your outstanding debt.

You may of course choose to make both principal and interest payments or just start paying interest.

 After the initial six months, you must begin repaying the student loan (principal and interest) to the financial institution.

If you resume full-time studies during this six-month period, the government will make the interest payments on the loan on your behalf.

The Deferred Payment Plan

The Deferred Payment Plan enables you to repay your student loan by making payments that are set on the basis of your financial capability and your family situation. If justified by your situation, it is even possible that no payment could be required for the period of time covered by your application. During this time, the government will continue to pay the interest on your loan. In addition, you will not be required to repay the interest paid on your behalf. However, you will need to provide proof of income, and the information you report will be checked.

If you qualify for the Deferred Payment Plan, the period covered by your application will in general last six months. The period is set by taking account of the period of time for which you apply to benefit from a relief measure for the repayment of your student loan, as well as information in your file. It could be less than 6 months if you return to your studies during the period of time covered by your application or if you reach the cumulative 60-month lifetime limit.

You can reapply to the Plan. However, you will need to submit a new application for each 6-month period for which you want to take advantage of the Plan so that your eligibility can be established. Renewal approval is subject to your having made all payments required under your preceding applications, if any.

You may apply to the Plan at any time during the 10 years (120 months) that follow the end of your 6-month option. While your application can be retroactive, it cannot go back more than 6 months from the date you apply.

If you wish to obtain an estimate of your monthly payment under the Deferred Payment Plan that is based on your financial and family situations, you may use the monthly payment simulator on our Web Site (www.afe.gouv.qc.ca).

APPENDIX 1

Several sample assessments of financial assistance that could be granted

EXAMPLE 1

Eric is a student with a parental contribution who lives with his parents. He is enrolled in an 8-month undergraduate university Bachelor's degree program (September-April). He has income of $5 000 and the combined income of his parents is $30 000. In addition to Eric, the family has another child in postsecondary education. Eric benefited from the Loans and Bursaries Program last year.

Allowable expenses	$6 948
Student's contribution (based on reported income)	$1 706
Parental contribution (based on reported income)	$0
Loan eligibility for the award year 8 months X $311 =	$2 488

Financial Assistance Assessment

Allowable expenses	$6 948
Student's contribution (based on reported income)	– $1 706
Parental contribution (based on reported income)	– $0
Financial needs	$5 242
Financial needs	=	Loan	+	Bursary
$5 242		$2 488		$2 754

Since the amount of financial needs exceeds the loan that could be granted for the award year, calculations stop and the student is entitled to a bursary.

EXAMPLE 2

Valerie is a single parent student and head of household, with one dependent child. She is enrolled part-time in a 9-month college-level technical course that runs from September through May. She has employment income of $5 000 and receives $1 000 in annual support payments. She benefited from financial assistance for educational expenses last year. She reports that she will not be studying next year as she will have completed her program.

Allowable expenses	$10 082
Student's contribution (based on reported income)	$799
Loan eligibility for the award year 9 months X $224 =	$2 016

Financial Assistance Assessment

Allowable expenses	$10 082
Student's contribution (based on reported income)	– $799
Financial needs	$9 283

Financial needs	=	Loan	+	Bursary
$9 283		$2 016		$7 267

Since the amount of financial needs exceeds the loan that could be granted for the award year, calculations stop and the student is entitled to a bursary.

EXAMPLE 3

Helen is a student with no parental contribution who is starting her graduate university study program. She does not live with her parents and is enrolled at university for 8 months (September-April). Her income is $10 000. Hélène benefited from financial assistance last year.

Allowable expenses	$10 508
Student's contribution (based on reported income)	$2 732
Loan eligibility for the award year 8 months X $413 =	$3 304

Financial Assistance Assessment

Allowable expenses	$10 508
Student's contribution (based on reported income)	– $2 732
Financial needs	$7 776

Financial needs	=	Loan	+	Bursary
$7 776		$3 304		$4 472

Since the amount of financial needs exceeds the loan that could be granted for the award year, calculations stop and the student is entitled to a bursary.

EXAMPLE 4

Malek is a student with a parental contribution who does not live with his parents. He is enrolled in a 15-credit/ session undergraduate university program that lasts 8 months per year (September-April). His income is $5 000 and the combined income of his parents is $86 000. Malek has a sibling who is a minor. This is not the first year that he receives student financial assistance.

Allowable expenses	$10 508
Student's contribution (based on reported income)	$1 706
Parental contribution (based on declared income)	$8 412
Loan eligibility for the award year 8 months X $311 = $2 488
Loan for the award year	$2 488
First loan portion	$2 400

Financial Assistance Assessment

Allowable expenses	$10 508
Student's contribution (based on reported income)	– $1 706
Parental contribution (based on declared income)	– $8 412
Financial needs	$390

Since the amount of financial needs is less than the loan that could be granted for the award year, calculations continue without considering employment income in assessing the student's contribution.

New Financial Assistance Assessment

Allowable expenses	$10 508
Student's contribution	– $0
Parental contribution (based on reported income)	– $8 412
Financial needs	$2 096

Since the amount of financial needs resulting from this new assessment is less than the first loan portion, calculations continue without considering the parental contribution.

New Financial Assistance Assessment

Allowable expenses	$10 508
Student's contribution	– $0
Parental contribution	– $0
Financial needs	$10 508

However, financial assistance to which this student could be entitled is limited to the first loan portion plus the special award for tuition fees.

Calculation of the special award for tuition fees

$$$20.85 \times 30 \text{ credits} = $626$$

Malek is entitled to a loan of $3 026.

$$$2 400 + $626 = $3 026$$

Balancing Studies and Family Obligations

If you have family responsibilities, the following measures could be of benefit to you.

- You may be eligible for financial assistance during the summer period even if you are not pursuing studies at that time, as long as you return to your studies the following year.
- Extension of the duration of your eligibility for a bursary to enable you to support one or more of your dependent children.
- Temporary exemption from repaying a student loan debt while you are pregnant, or following the birth or adoption of a child.
- If you are at least 20 weeks pregnant:
 - You may be recognized as a self-supporting student (as a result, a parental or sponsor's contribution is not considered in the assessment of the financial assistance that could be awarded to you).
 - Living expenses for a child could be recognized.
 - Living expenses as a self-supporting student could be recognized, even if you live with your parents.
 - If you do not have a spouse, expenses as a head of a single-parent family could be recognized.

Measures to Help Students with Major Functional Disabilities

If you have or had permanent severe visual, hearing, motor or organ impairment that significantly and persistently limits your ability to study, the following measures could be of benefit to you.

- You may be eligible for the Loans and Bursaries Program, which is usually intended for full-time students, even if you are a part-time student (you need to be enrolled for at least 20 hours of teaching per month).
- All financial assistance to which you are entitled will be awarded as a bursary.
- You may be recognized as a self-supporting student if you have earned at least 45 credits in less than 3 years of studies in a single program (as a result, a parental or sponsor's contribution is not considered in the assessment of the financial assistance that could be awarded to you).
